SKILLS YOU WILL USE IMMEDIATELY

This course will create a supportive environment to stretch and explore the participant's ability to establish an authentic and open customer relationship so that you can communicate your passion for the health of your clients to their owners, building a level of trust that frees you to do your job better. Most of us know the theory of what is required to communicate well with people. Our sessions will focus on developing your emotional and physical ease in communication situations, increasing your awareness of your own habitual responses - to the challenges of interpersonal communication in times of stress.
