OUR PROMISE

The safety of veterinary personnel and animals is the most important element to running a veterinary hospital. Understanding animal behaviour better and gaining expertise in handling techniques and advise to owners improves compliance, reduces risk and leads to healthier human animal interactions. If you scruff a cat, you need to attend this workshop and update your skills. This training will make your hospital a happier, safer and less stressful place to work.

EDUCATORS

DR TRACEY HENDERSON

Tracey graduated from Murdoch University in 2000, and has worked at Willunga Veterinary Services since as a mixed practice vet. After some time in the UK she returned to SA as a part-time small animal veterinarian. Tracey designed and started the Puppy Preschool® classes (based on Dr Kersti Seksel's format) in 2001 and has incorporated and changed the format as new information has become available. In 2004 Tracey completed a post graduate course in animal behaviour at Sydney University and offers exclusive support to troubled clients and their animals as they need it. In 2008 Tracey became a member of the Australian College of Veterinary Scientists in Veterinary Behaviour by examination. Tracey and Tracy now advise large companies that engage with animals regularly on body language and behaviour to reduce the incidence of injury.

TRACY BAGHE

Tracy started working at the RSPCA Lonsdale shelter in 2002 and was involved in behavioural assessments of adopted dogs, which involved many hours of hands on training. During her time at the RSPCA Tracy developed a strong passion to also help the dogs on the 'other side' and to try and prevent them from ending up at the shelter. Tracy started to work alongside Tracey Henderson with behavioural consultations in 2008. And is also a veterinary nurse at Willunga Veterinary Services, in SA. In 2010 Tracy received her Certificate 4 in Companion animal training and became a nationally accredited Delta Dog Behaviour Trainer. Tracy's enthusiasm for education and training pets is infectious.
